

2016 KALLESKE LORRAINE SEMSCATO

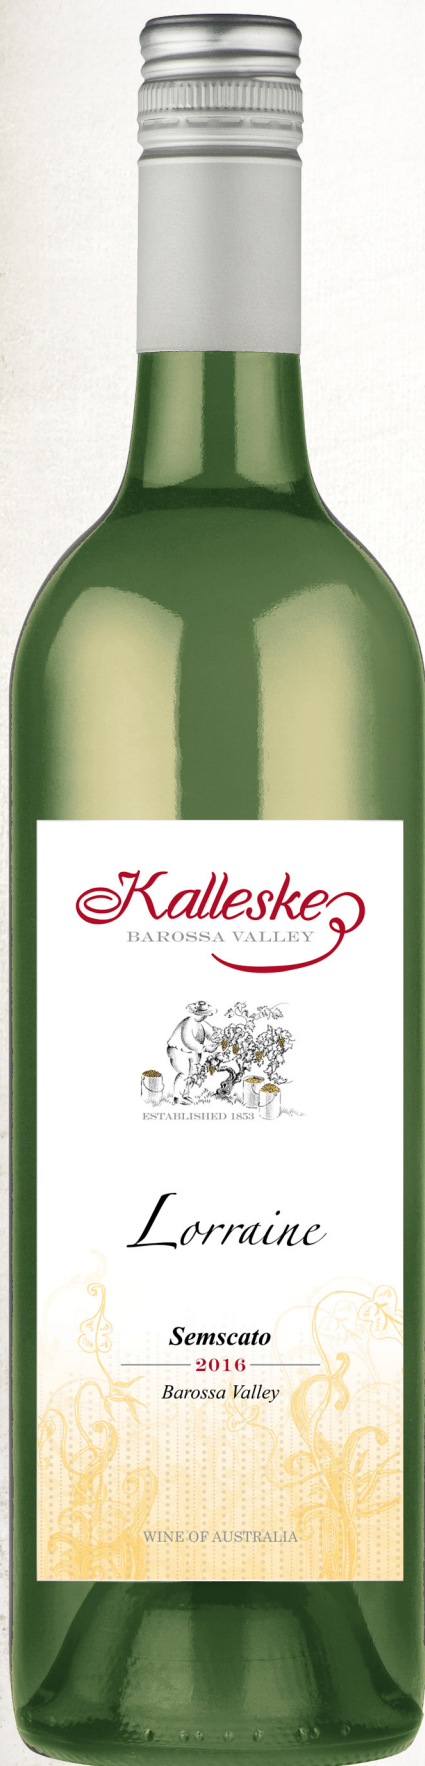

90 Points

"Ya know what? This is bloody delicious. Insanely drinkable, wickedly refreshing, tangy and light and breezy and zingy. Sure, it's not going to win over hearts of the dead pan critics, but it'll win over a battalion of lovers of this style. Lemon and lemon barley water, fine, frisky spritz, cool and crunchy and zesty. Onya".

"If you want to produce a moscato style of wine – sherbety fizz, grapey flavours, fresh sweetness – but you don't have any muscat grapes planted in your vineyard, what do you do? The Kalleske family have solved this problem by blending early-picked Semillon grapes with ripe, perfumed viognier grapes and stopping the fermentation before it has finished, bottling the wine with some residual sugar and CO2. The result is deliciously appealing, and very moscato-like".
