

2017 KALLESKE FLORENTINE CHENIN BLANC

Plenty of lifted fruit smells: apples, pears and a hint of tropical passion fruit. With white pepper and cardamon spice for seasoning. Bright texture and flavour profile with some youthful sweet tropical fruit esters and tangy pome fruit. There's a touch of brine to partner the sharp acidity at the finish, so matching with a chicken and leek pie wouldn't hurt.

Estery banana aromas lead into a crisp, well-powered palate offering fresh fruit galore. You'd hook into this without any problem. Apple, stonefruit, nashi pear and citrus. Good sense of 'body' without sacrificing any momentum. It's been released too young but it's a good release.

It pours a soft straw colour and has a strong tropical aroma of pear & pineapple. Nashi pear flavours flow onto the palate. As it sits in the mouth it does have a fairly creamy mouthfeel until gentle acidity firms the wine up, preventing it from becoming too broad. Finally, a lovely soft phenolic grip is left evenly across the tongue.

Overall it is light-medium bodied, pure and relatively simple.
